Abstract
The content of the administrative reform plan for the period 2011–2020 of the Government of Vietnam on the basis of the overall reform of the national administration, focuses on four main areas, namely institutional reform and organizational reform, structure, building and developing contingent of civil servants and public finance (Government, 2011). Thus, along with the institutional and organizational reform, the public finance reform is also a central task of the administrative reform in the condition that Vietnam continues to strongly transition from the centralized mechanism. The subsidy to a socialist-oriented market economy, in particular, is even more necessary when Vietnam has become an official member of the World Trade Organization. One of the current concerns for good implementation of public finance reform is the implementation of autonomy and self-responsibility for the use of payroll and administrative management funding for administrative agencies, state and financial autonomy mechanism for non-business units. This article focuses on analyzing the current situation of reforming the financial operation mechanism of public non-business units in Lao Cai province, Vietnam, pointing out the achievements, limitations, causes and some recommendations to end promote the reform of the financial operation mechanism of public non-business units in Lao Cai province, Vietnam in the context of world economic integration.

1. Introduction

Renovating public non-business units is an inevitable trend of economic development and a common policy of the Party and State. Since 2018, Lao Cai province has also had encouraging results on the renovation of public non-business units. The province has issued 8/12 lists of public non-business services in each field; issued 09 public non-business service prices as a basis for the State to order or bid to provide public services, to convert according to the mode of estimate assignment under the former "input" payroll to the ordering mechanism., assigning tasks to "output" products (Lao Cai Provincial People's Council, 2019). Thereby, it gradually raised the degree of autonomy of the units. Since then, public non-business units have provided and improved the quality of public non-business services for the state, to meet the satisfaction of the people every day when using the state's public non-business services. , and gradually reduced the State subsidy for non-business units.

In fact, the number of unassigned public non-business units is still high. The lack of synchronization in the formulation and promulgation of documents, many legal documents on public non-business units are still slow to be promulgated or revised, so the implementation of autonomy mechanism of the units is still much. embarrassment. However, in some public non-business units, from leaders to officials and public employees, they are not well informed about their ideology, so they are not proactive in promoting autonomy, improving service quality, and gradually reducing budget support; There is a lack of determination, boldness, and daring to face the challenges of heads (heads of branches with affiliated units, heads of public service delivery units). Many units still have thoughts of waiting and relying on the State, seeking to delay the progress of gradually increasing the level of financial autonomy or converting into joint stock companies; have not actively developed mechanisms and ways to have a stable and sustainable revenue source in order to step by step improve financial autonomy, autonomy in performing tasks, and reduce the burden of the state budget.

In this situation, it is very necessary to continue to reform the financial operation mechanism of public non-business units in Lao Cai province in the context of world economic integration. Stemming from the above practice, the authors want to share their views and propose a number of recommendations with scientific and practical basis on this issue.

2. Literature Review

According to the Thanh (2019), a public non-business unit is an organization established by a competent state agency, a political organization or a socio-political organization in accordance with the law. legal entities, providing public services, serving state management in fields such as education, training, health, scientific research, culture, sport, tourism, labor - invalids and social, media and other non-business fields are regulated by law. A non-profit business, also known as a not-for-profit organization, is a tax-exempt organization formed for religious, charitable, literary, artistic, scientific, or educational purposes. It is an incorporated business from which its shareholders or trustees do not benefit financially. Any money earned must be retained by the organization, and used for its own account, operations, and programs. A few well known non-profit organizations include Habitat for Humanity, Red Cross, and United Way (Ausha Jackson, 2016).
Non-business units are classified into four categories: (i) Public non-business units that cover recurrent and investment expenditures; (ii) The public non-business unit guarantees recurrent expenditure by itself; (iii) The public non-business unit guarantees part of recurrent expenditure by itself; (iv) Public non-business units are guaranteed recurrent spending by the State (Hieu, 2019). Pham (2020) thinks that the system of public non-business units plays a very important role in everyday life because the public non-business unit’s operation aims to provide public services. Weak for ensuring serving the needs of people in fields such as culture, tourism, health, education, science and other fields.

Le (2020) said that the organizational system of non-business units in Vietnam is cumbersome, fragmented, scattered and overlapping; weak internal management, low quality and efficiency of services. State budget expenditure for public non-business units is still too large, some units suffer losses, negative effects and waste due to weak and ineffective financial management. The effectiveness and efficiency of state management for public non-business units is limited; Many legal documents on the implementation of autonomy regimes of public non-business units are delayed, promulgated, or amended and supplemented. Decrees of the Government of Vietnam on the mechanism of autonomy in public non-business units in 5 fields, including: health; culture, sports and tourism; Job education; information - media and press; Education and training are still in the process of finalizing a draft, not yet issued (Phuong, 2020).

Nguyen (2020) believes that the reorganization of public non-business units will contribute to reducing the budget burden when having to spread investment to all public non-business units and types of translation. Public service for all target groups. The reorganization of public non-business units creates conditions for the State to invest budget in units that provide the most basic and essential public services, and at the same time, concentrate budgets to help target groups. Weakness in the development process. This is the basis for ensuring social equity in the public service sector. Affluent groups of income groups in the conditional society will have access to the high quality services they want. While other target groups still have the opportunity to enjoy basic, essential public services so that they can afford the conditions for development. The case study of Albania is analysed with a specific focus on the scope, contents and sequence of reforms as well as on the role of international institutions. The Albanian transition clearly demonstrates how development achieved without paying attention to public administration and management can be easily reversible and hardly sustainable. Open issues include building consensus on a general prioritization of PA reform agendas in transition countries and identifying more effective approaches for evaluating reform projects. Further enquiry on the first point can help avoid incoherent reform initiatives, also exacerbated by the multitude of donors financing reforms in these countries, while a better evaluation could address the declining flows of foreign aid and benefit from an increasing results-oriented approach, in recipient countries, as well as in international institutions (Riccardo and Denita, 2007)

Nguyen (2018) proposes that the State should step by step restructure the state budget investment for the supply in the direction of gradually increasing the proportion of spending on capital construction investment in order to strengthen facilities, improve quality, give priority to investment in institutions such as education, healthcare in key economic regions, mountainous areas, and ethnic minority areas, in order to narrow the supply gap. Levels and beneficiaries among regions, regions and regions of the country. Thereby, gradually reducing the proportion of recurrent expenditure from the state budget for public service provision, at the same time, adopting a policy to mobilize contributions from society to offset recurrent costs for service provision. Starting with modest, local initiatives like adopt-a-school programs and teacher-recognition awards, business efforts have widened and deepened. Corporate programs range from leadership training for school superintendents and principals to schools within schools for teenage mothers. Businesspeople are also taking leadership roles in building statewide networks, such as the Texas Business and Education Coalition, to support school restructuring and academic reforms. Overall, the level of business engagement and activity is unprecedented in this century (Nan Stone, 1991).

Lao Cai is a highland border province, located between the Northeast and Northwest regions of Vietnam. Lao Cai province consists of nine administrative units at district level and equivalent to one city (Lao Cai), one town (Sa Pa) and seven districts (Bao Thang, Bao Yen, Bac Ha, Si Ma Cai, Muong Khuong, Bat Xat, Van Ban). Compared to other localities in Vietnam, Lao Cai has a small population, low population density and many ethnic minorities, most of whom live below the poverty line. Due to its remote terrain and location, the average population density of Lao Cai is 103 people/km2, among the lowest in Vietnam. Lao Cai is home to 25 ethnic groups in Vietnam, of which ethnic minorities account for 64% of the total population (Nung accounts for 4.4%; Giay accounts for 4.7%; Dao accounts for 14.05%; Tay accounting for 15.84%; H'Mong accounts for 22.21%), Kinh people account for 35.9%, other accounts for 2.9%. Ethnic factors, customs and lifestyles have a multidimensional influence on development opportunities and levels (Lao Cai Provincial People's Committee, 2010).

Lao Cai currently has a convenient infrastructure to become a "bridge" on the economic corridor of Kunming (China) - Lao Cai - Hanoi - Hai Phong - Quang Ninh. In particular, the Provincial Competitiveness Index of Lao Cai (PCI) is always in the top of the country, ranking first among the Northwestern provinces. The Covid-19 pandemic had a comprehensive and profound impact on all socio-economic fields of countries in the world, including Vietnam. In comparison with the whole country, many indicators were achieved higher than the regional and national average. Specifically, the economic growth of Lao Cai in 2020 will reach 6.31%, higher than the general growth rate of the country, the second highest among the provinces in the Northern Midlands and Mountains (Bao Lao Cai, 2020).

4.3 Overall Assessment of the Implementation of Reforming the Financial Operation Mechanism of Public Non-business Units in Lao Cai Province, Vietnam

4.3.1 Results Achieved

Firstly, the task of directing and guiding the implementation
Up to now, basically, the implementation of functions, tasks, powers and organizational structure of public service delivery units has been implemented in accordance with the instructions of the ministries and central branches. For public non-business units, there is no official guidance from the ministries and central branches; Based on the functions and tasks of departments, Lao Cai Provincial People's Committee issued regulations on suitable positions, functions, tasks and organizational structure of these units, avoiding overlapping tasks between units, clearly define the task of state management and provision of public non-business services.

Secondly, the results of autonomous implementation of tasks, organizational structure and personnel

Based on the assigned functions and tasks, in recent years, public non-business units have actively planned and organized service delivery activities, joint ventures, and association to provide and improve. the quality of public services contributes to promoting the local socio-economic development; at the same time, proactively reviewing and building plans to rearrange the organizational structure towards a streamlined direction, implementing the mechanism of autonomy and accountability; the merger, separation and dissolution of public non-business units were carried out in accordance with regulations, a number of units actively developed plans to submit to competent authorities to streamline organizational structure, associated with the assignment and assignment of specific tasks according to each job position, suitable to the professional capacity of the public employee and employee; Basic implementation of management units, using the right number of people working.

Thirdly, the results of financial autonomy and self-responsibility and income of employees in public non-business units in Lao Cai province

- The Provincial People's Committee issued Plan No. 281 / KH-UBND dated November 17, 2016 to consolidate and reorganize the network of public non-business units in Lao Cai province, for the period 2016-2020. In addition to each field, the education sector is reviewing and adjusting the network of schools and classrooms; Non-business units in the agriculture, forestry, health, culture - according to and tourism sectors . . . have been reviewing, reorganizing, and consolidating the network.

- Developed service prices, implemented orders for public non-business services and fully charged salaries, thereby reducing the number of people receiving salaries from the budget, saving details to increase income. for officials, increase reinvestment activities.

- The province has issued documents to develop a scheme on the use of public assets for business, lease, joint venture or association purposes in accordance with the Law on Public Asset Use Management, which is a premise. for non-business units to use public assets for the purpose of business, lease, joint venture or association to develop non-business service activities.

4.3.2 Some Limitations

Firstly, the task of directing and guiding the implementation
- The direction of the implementation of autonomy mechanism for the SNCL unit of some party committees and heads of agencies, organizations and units is not drastic and ineffective.

- Agencies and units still encounter a number of difficulties and problems, including certain disturbances and confusion about the organization of the direction and implementation of the tasks initially after the implementation. show consolidation and arrangement.

Secondly, implementing autonomously in task performance, organizational structure and human resources

- Public non-business units that have been equitized or converted to an autonomous mechanism still perform reluctantly, not proactively due to inadequate awareness of the policy of equitization and autonomous transformation in public non-business units;

- The current public service agencies are only interested in purely activities of providing public services according to their functions and tasks, according to the planned targets, not proactively proposing mechanisms policies to promote the implementation of financial autonomy, personnel autonomy, many units still have thoughts of expecting and relying on the State; have not actively developed mechanisms and ways to have a stable and sustainable revenue source in order to step by step improve financial autonomy, autonomy in performing tasks, and reduce the burden of the state budget.

- The reorganization of the organizational apparatus has a direct impact on the interests of cadres, officials and workers in public non-business units, so when rearranging public non-business units, often find it difficult to rearrange and restructure the contingent of officials, especially for leading officials and managers as well as to deal with relevant policies and regimes;

- Lao Cai province has issued policies to attract and favor high-quality human resources, but the attraction is very difficult, including a team of specialized doctors and teachers, affecting the quality and efficiency of provision of public health services and education in the province.

Thirdly, Implement financial autonomy and self-responsibility and income of employees in public non-business units in Lao Cai province.

- Some public non-business units, taking steps to renovate non-business units, still perform mechanically, not guaranteeing the nature under the direction of the Provincial People's Committee, the quality is not guaranteed (as the plan autonomy, the project of using assets for the purpose of joint venture construction is not guaranteed, there is no specific roadmap to improve the degree of autonomy, reduce the state budget level);

- Some specialized departments have not been proactive in building a list of public non-business activities using state budget and criteria and quality standards, mechanisms for monitoring, evaluating and verifying the quality of industrial non-business services. it is difficult to promote autonomy in public service delivery units. Since then, there have been no public service charges using the state budget as a basis for state-ordered services, at present some services only apply the cost norms to ensure operation. Therefore, the price of the services ordered by the State has not been properly calculated, thus it has not improved the autonomy level of public service delivery units;

- The financial autonomy of non-business health units still faces some difficulties due to deteriorating hospital facilities, an incomplete list of medical equipment, and deterioration of many equipment. Have to repair, replace components or replace new ones, including many medical equipment with great value such as CT Scanner system, Spect machine, MRI machine, etc. Very high maintenance and replacement costs. Currently, the salary payment for civil servants is mainly from the state budget.

4.3.3 The Causes of the Limitations

Objective reasons

- The lack of synchronization in the formulation and promulgation of documents, many legal documents on public non-business units are still slow to be promulgated or revised, so the implementation of autonomy mechanism of the units remains many embarrassing problems.

- The policy of not distinguishing between public and non-public non-business units and public-private cooperation in public non-business activities is unclear, there is no effective monitoring mechanism and no clear regulation. Multiply for this cooperation.

- With the characteristics of mountainous and highland provinces, most of them are ethnic minorities, socio-economic conditions still face many difficulties, the transformation of autonomy mechanism of public non-business units is very difficult to implement, while the majority of public non-business units in Lao Cai province are providers of basic and essential public services, ensuring social security such as education and training, health care, social protection and these units operate not for profit so it is difficult to attract investment from outside the state budget.

Subjective reasons

- Awareness and thinking of some officials working in the management of non-business units Lao Cai province still has the thought of relying on subsidies of the State;

- A part of public non-business unit managers are good at professional expertise but still have limited knowledge and skills in policy management, economic management, and do not fully understand the role and importance of the implementation of the mechanism of autonomy, lack of initiative and breakthrough in thinking, awareness and action to generate legal sources of income outside the budget, leading to limitations in the implementation of the financial autonomy mechanism;

- Propaganda and grasping little efficiency, not changing people's perception when enjoying public non-business services must join with the State in sharing and contributing costs;

- Lao Cai province's public non-business units have a low degree of autonomy, the field of economic career is not attractive to investors (low income source; large amount of assets under management; the number of officials and employees is large, difficult to handle when equitizing), so it is difficult to formulate plans for financial restructuring, operating fields and labor restructuring to ensure the feasible when equitizing.
